THE AREA

Randolph County Conservation Area is about 4 miles north of Chester off County Highway DD, in Randolph County. The original land acquisition of 25 acres in 1958 has been increased to 1,031 recreational acres, including a 65-acre lake.

THE LAKE

In 1958, plans were in progress for the dam and spillway to impound some 85 acres. The lake was completed in 1961, access roads had been built and additional access roads were in. A service building and toilets were constructed in 1962. Several years later the boat harbor utility building was completed, harbor improvements with additional parking areas nearby, the concrete boat ramp and boat dock were completed and a custodian's residence was constructed.

THE NATURAL SCENE

The rolling topography has a minimum amount of flat land. Because of the fairly steep slopes, no cultivation is incorporated on the area other than food plot planting for wildlife. The lake is surrounded by good quality hardwood timber, interspersed with several other stands. Several miles of shrub, autumn olive, bush honeysuckle and multiflora rose interspersed throughout provide abundant cover for upland game.

Mature shrub fencerows and field borders intersown with expanses of unmowed grass and small annual food plots of grain sorghum, wheat and corn provide excellent quality food and cover for quail and rabbits. Such extensive cover on the area makes the use of beagles and bird dogs almost essential for insuring a successful rabbit or quail hunt. Several large stands of mature oak-hickory woods are scattered throughout the area.

Fox and gray squirrels are numerous and represent an important hunting resource on the area. The number of deer inhabiting the area appears to be increasing and the prospects of taking a deer on the area with a bow are improving.
